Effectively developing people requires various tactics and skills. Many managers rely heavily on formal development programs, lacking an in-depth understanding of the ways they can play a critical role.

During this interactive webinar, learn how managers can contribute to employee development to ensure that employees continuously strengthen their skill sets and build capabilities needed for the future

Join this ConnectSpark webinar to:

- Gain a research-based framework for manager-led development.
- Learn the six critical modes of engagement along with associated actions that managers can use to develop employees.
- Identify the key practices of an exemplary developmental manager.
